

Files Suit Against Orland Park Conservator

The court room of Judge Louis Raschke in the Orland Park village hall was crowded last Saturday afternoon by residents of the village anxious to hear the testimony in the case brought by Rudolph Liliwitz against Edgar Cooper and James Cannon, all of Orland, charging the defendants with unlawfully withholding from Liliwitz possession of the premises legally described as follows, all located in the village of Orland Park:

Lots 32, 33, and 34 of the N. 30 acres of the S. 60 acres of the west half of the S. E. quarter of Section 9, twp. 36, range 12 in the Humphrey Subdivision together with all buildings and improvements thereon.

According to the story as brought out in court, the property belonged to Mrs. August Horsche who died last November at the age of 96 years. The forepart of December, 1928 Edgar Cooper, an alderman of Orland Park, and Dr. W. R. Schussler also of Orland, were appointed conservators of Mrs. Horsche's estate by Probate Judge Honore of Cook County as it was contended that Mrs. Horsche was not able physically or mentally to handle her affairs. Mr. Cooper was given permission by the court to rent the premises.

Mrs. Horsche was unable to take care of herself alone and was cared for in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Liliwitz for ten months. In her final illness she was taken to the Burnside hospital where she died.

Mr. Liliwitz contended that Mrs. Horsche had deeded the property in question to him, and that he should therefore have possession of the place. When James Cannon rented the place from Mr. Cooper a few weeks ago, Mr. Liliwitz claimed that lawful possession of the property was being held from him and on this ground he instituted the suit.

Attorney A. H. Krusemark of Joliet who also is the village attorney represented both Mr. Cooper and Mr. Cannon. The defendants had a number of witnesses who testified that Mrs. Horsche had been of unsound mind for several years.

Attorney Christopher of Chicago, represented Mr. Liliwitz. He introduced a deed purported to have been executed by Mrs. Horsche on December 1, 1928. As she could not write her name, her cross marked in the place of the signature was witnessed by the brother-in-law of Mr. Liliwitz and the deed was recorded in the office of the recorder of Cook County.

The defendants contended that 5 days after the deed was made, the conservators above mentioned were appointed by the probate court.

After lengthy arguments and testimony, Judge Raschke took the case under advisement until Saturday of this week. In the meantime Mr. Cannon still occupies the premises.

Prior to Mr. Cannon renting the place, Mr. Liliwitz acting on advice of counsel padlocked all the buildings on the place and Mr. Cooper, one of the conservators, on advice from the Probate Court, removed the locks.

Mrs. Horsche had no relatives in this country, but has two nieces residing in England who are nearest of kin. Ward Humphrey of Chicago has been appointed administrator of the estate.

The case was to have been tried in the court of Judge Henry Waje, but the defendants took a change of venue to the court of Judge Louis Raschke.

To Let Contract For Wolf Road Bridges Mar. 29

The best news Mokena has received for sometime was received this week when Fred Francis, chairman of the Will County Bond Issue Committee announced that the contract for the construction of bridges on the Wolf Road north and south of Mokena, will be let on March 29th at the court house in Joliet. The right of way papers have been prepared for the bridges and have been turned over to the county right of way committee of which Supervisor North of Lockport is chairman.

The bridge over Hickory Creek south of Mokena will have two spans of 40 feet each. The other bridge on Wolf road north of Mokena is to be one span of 30 feet.

Two bridges are to be let the same day for Maple road. One is located on the north fork of Hickory Creek. One of the bridges will have a span of 25 feet, the other 35 ft.

The paving of Wolf Road will be next in order after the contract for the bridge construction has been let. It is planned to finish the bridge work and paving this summer. The right of way for Wolf Road from the north end thru the village and thru the C. M. Cleveland farm to the Lincoln Highway will be taken up later.

White Store Moves Into New Home Built By J. J. Coady, Former Mokena Doctor

The opening of the White Store in its new quarters on Cass street just east of the Ottawa street M. E. church, Joliet, is of special significance to Mokena as the new building occupied by this store was built by Dr. J. J. Coady, former Mokena physician. Dr. Coady has leased the new building to J. J. Cohen, manager of the White Store, for ten years at a total rental of $102,000 or a total of $10,200 yearly.

The new structure has a frontage of 66 feet on Cass street and a depth of 97 ft. It possesses the most modern type of display windows.

Ten years ago The White Store came to Joliet. The original store occupied a space of little more than 14 feet frontage. From this small beginning, with its popular policy of doing business it was not long before the need of more space and more salespeople became apparent to conveniently care for costumers needs. Such expansion has been necessary three times since. The White Store has become one of the leading stores of Joliet and Will County.

Mr. Cohen says new departments will be added as the demand requires. Here are some of the outstanding new features of the new White Store, a complete modernly equipped shoe repair department, also one of the most modern equipped grocery departments with electric refrigerator tables to be found anywhere. Thru persistent advertising, the White Store has become a household word in Will county and adjacent territory.

The citizens of Orland Park are grateful to these gentlemen for the very fine civic spirit they have shown.

Youthful Hikers Are Runaways

About a week ago two boys about 14 and 16 years old came to Mokena and were seen wandering about the streets. Alderman Martie saw the boys and asked them where they were going. The lads told a hard luck story about walking from Colorado to Chicago in search of an uncle. They claimed they had gone as far as Midlothian when they were told they might be picked up if they landed in Chicago so they decided to walk back to Colorado. They said their parents were dead.

The boys were given a night's lodging in the police station. The next morning they were given a fine breakfast at Mr. Martie's home and later Mr. Martie, Elmer Cooper, Charles Hirsch and several others chipped in and gave the boys a few dollars as they felt sorry for them.

It was finally decided to take the boys to Supt. Peter McCarthy of the Morning Star Mission in Joliet who might be able to do something for them. Both boys were neatly dressed and well mannered.

When Mr. Cooper took them in his auto the boys readily consented to go but when mention was made of Collins street on which the Mission is located, one of the boys became frightened thinking they were being taken to the penitentiary, so he made a plea that auto riding always made him seasick and he wanted to get out of the car, but Mr. Cooper decided otherwise.

Mr. McCarthy was busy in the city jail so the boys and the Mokena men went to the First National Bank where Mr. McCarthy has his "downtown office" and waited for the mission head. When the latter came he took the boys aside and had a heart to heart talk with them. The boys broke down and cried and said they were run aways from Chicago, that their mother was dead, that their father was a drunk and that they were tired of that life and were seeking better conditions.

They got started wrong by telling lies. Supt. McCarthy purchased rail road tickets for both boys and sent them back to Chicago. They gave their names as Fletcher and Joseph Doyle. They had at first claimed to be twins, but they were not. They were brothers.

HONEY AND CANDY

Honey, sugars, dried fruits and candy, the purest that can be made, are all quick energy foods. The tired shopper, with a chocolate cream or two or any like amount of candy will take new hope and plod on. Our physicians now are recommending candy as an essential for children; we are advised to remember "to treat candy and other forms of sweets as food."

They have a place in every well-balanced diet, just as all other varieties of food have. Pure candy is a safe and requisite food for children as well as for adults.

The fondness for sweets is a natural craving and should be indulged wisely, as it is an expression of a definite bodily need.

The wise parent will give the child candy for dessert, or far enough from the meal to not satisfy the appetite and allow the child to refuse the food served at the table.

The healthy child expends so much energy in its activities that he needs a large supply of energy producing foods.

By experiment it has been found that sugar in some form is most quickly absorbed and assimilated, thus giving quick energy.

Tuck in a piece or two of candy in the luncheon basket, be it for young son's or father's, they both will appreciate the kind attention.

Our candy manufacturers tell us that peppermint flavor is called for in candies more than all other flavors combined. As one has several flavors from which to choose and many varieties of candies, soft or hard, he is indeed hard to please who cannot find kinds to suit.

One need never hesitate when debating about an appropriate gift, for a box of candy is always in season and always enjoyed. Therefore when in doubt, give candy.

With bridge such an everyday affair, we find even the cubes of sugar in dainty boxes, formed in diamonds, hearts and clubs, making even the cup of tea or coffee more attractive and appealing.

The daughter or son of the house today who reaches twelve and is not able to produce a good dish of fudge, peanut brittle or molasses candy is poorly equipped for being an entertainer. A candy pull is enjoyed as much today as it was in grandmother's time. If you don't believe it try having one soon.

FOR SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPER

What can be more appealing to the appetite on a cool night than hot, appetizing sandwiches. They may be made as dainty as an afternoon tea sandwich or as substantial as a main dish.

Mock Crab Sandwich.—To one-half cupful of grated cheese add one-fourth cupful of creamed butter, one-half teaspoonful of made mustard, two teaspoonfuls of anchovy paste, a few drops of lemon juice and a tablespoonful of chopped olives. Spread on slices of toasted bread and place in the oven until very hot. Garnish with parsley and narrow strips of canned sweet pimientos. Serve with celery.

Prune Sandwich, Fried.—Cook prunes after soaking well, pour off the syrup, stone, put through the food chopper and add sugar and cinnamon to taste. Cut the crust off of sandwich bread, slice thin and spread with the mixture and cover with another slice. Dip the sandwiches in a plain pancake batter and fry like french toast or in deep fat. These make a delightful breakfast toast.

Salad Beaucaire.—Chop celery and endive rather coarsely, season with a snappy french dressing, adding a bit of mustard; let stand an hour before serving. Just before taking to the table add chopped boiled ham, a sour apple diced and moistened with a little tarragon and mayonnaise. Surround the salad with a border of small potatoes which have been marinated with french dressing for an hour or more; alternate with the same sized beets or sliced beets.

Hot Egg Sandwich.—Cook six eggs in the shell until hard, remove the shells and chop fine. Add pepper and salt and a teaspoonful each of chopped parsley and capers, a tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of cornstarch mixed in four tablespoonfuls of light cream. Cook until slightly thickened. Have ready slices of buttered and toasted bread on hot plates, fill the sandwich and cover with the egg and drawn butter or cream sauce. Garnish with sprigs of parsley. Add half a teaspoonful of curry powder to the creamed mixture if desired.

ANYTHING YOU WANT IN HATS; LACY-KNIT TUCK-IN LATEST.

NO ONE need complain this season of not being able to find a becoming hat. The shops are full of 'em!

You can see from the models in the picture that hats are—well, just anything you want them to be. Brimmed or unbrimmed, of lacy straw, of the new and immensely popular glossy smooth-as-linen straws, of velvet ribbon, or perhaps flaunting polka dots, for polka dots have become the plaything of the milliner this season—yes, spring millinery dares to be just that versatile.

Perhaps there is no item which quite so intrigues the feminine eye in millinery openings now taking place, as that of the new lace straws. The story of these lace straws is a fascinating tale of many chapters, beginning with touches of openwork straws in connection with other straws. The program includes also charming little dance caps or berets of straw lace, leading on and on through a maze of lace straw effects, one brim widening more than another, climaxing with huge diaphanous and most flattering capelines—the latter a picturesque feature in sight for summer.

The first hat in this group bespeaks the graceful lines which the new lace straws are assuming.

By way of contrast, attention is called to the smart hat just below which is one of the very glossy black panama-like types. The bow at the back is made of a pasted feather banding. One sees these little feather novelties positioned on quite a few of the new spring straws.

Belting ribbon! How often are we hearing of the belting-ribbon hat. The idea is for the hat of belting ribbon to match the frock in color, or at least to show a color relation. Perfectly models work the voguish linen-like exotic straws in conjunction with beguiling lace straws. In some instances the edge of the brim of a panama-like, or baku, or balibunt straw, or a kindred type, is finished with a narrow color-matched lace straw border.

Another becoming type is the hat whose crown of smooth straw is brimmed with a flare of lace straw, accenting an extremely openwork patterning. Hats of this character are exceedingly effective in black or navy.

The Lacy-Knit Tuck-In.

Here is something really new and very swaggy—the sleeveless lacy-knit tuck-in. In the way of an early spring sports blouse, there's nothing smarter. For that matter, things knitted of every description have moved to the very front of the style stage. Wherefore, with women who are fashion-wise, it is a foregone conclusion that a collection of knitted costumes must be included in every up-to-the-moment spring wardrobe.

The new knitted modes are masterpieces considered from the standpoint of coloring, design and construction. In fact, one has to look more than once to be really sure that this dress or that, this ensemble or that, is really knitted, for in this season's modes there is not a style detail lacking, such as, for instance, bolero effects, capelets, flared and plaited skirts. In fact, all the intriguing fashion items which one associates with perfectly tailored cloth or silk models are featured in the newer knitted modes.

However, to return to the subject of the lace-knit, tuck-in blouse, such as are, without a doubt, of outstanding chic. They cover a wide color range including charming pastels as well as the very bright tones, also matching the browns, tans and grays of tweeds and other novelty suitings.

Perhaps it would be more accurate to refer to the dainty effects as wool lace, for they follow the actual patternings of lace and are quite as sheer in their openwork mesh. Those who prefer a pullover sweater with the new cap sleeves will find to their pleasure most attractive lace-knit types. Also lovely one-piece dresses are displayed which combine filmy wool-lace with a lightweight jersey weave, the latter designfully applied in stitched bandings and in other trimming effects.

Very wearable and adjustable to warm versus cool spring days, are the winsome ensembles which use a plain jersey-knit fabric for jacket and skirt together with a blouse of delicate wool lace. The fact that pastel-colored blouses will be extensively worn with suits this spring should prove a hint as to color selection when choosing one of the new lace-knit tuck-ins.

The Duty of Dancing

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

"YOU really are a wonderful dancer," said the girl in buttercup yellow.

"Thank you," Jim Harper sitting beside the girl—both on camp chairs at one end of the room—looked at her with a quizzical smile. "You said that as if you fully expected me to dance like a clown."

The girl in buttercup yellow, small, with clear, pale face, had deep gray eyes that thrilled Jim when she looked at him. "I was surprised," she admitted, "because you really are an extraordinarily good dancer, and from what I had heard of you I didn't expect it—living out West there, working on that big dam, without any girls anywhere, around to dance with. And, besides, you're so big—and outdoorsy. You know what I mean—so rugged and—"

"You're right about there not being any girls out there," Jim said. "I guess my sister has been talking about me. You know Patty, then?"

They were sitting at one end of the room midway between a group of chattering older women who were the chaperons, and the orchestra, hedged about by palms and ferns. The girl in yellow nodded to the chaperons, and her eyes cast about the room watching the other couples, in a way that annoyed Jim.

"I think Patty likes nursing," said the girl in yellow, and Jim said he was sure she did. The rest of the family were much opposed, he said, but he had sided with her. He knew how it would be to want to do something as much as Patty wanted to nurse, and then have a family set against it. "You're a nurse, too," he remarked to the girl in yellow. Of course she must be or she wouldn't be there at this dance given by the girls in the training school of St. Elizabeth's hospital.

"It's funny," remarked Jim, looking so intently at the girl beside him that she could not take her eyes away, "but when I was a boy in boarding school and broke some bones playing my first football and had to go to the hospital, it seemed as if the nurses were all old and prim like school teachers. But you seem just like a little girl. It's wonderful—really wonderful—with all that you must go through, that you are able to keep so sweet and flower-like."

"Maybe the way we dress nowadays has something to do with it," suggested the girl.

"And, of course," added Jim, "there must be a lot of the nurses who aren't like you—head nurses and superintendents. Patty has told me quite a bit about the head nurse here," he added. "She must be a courageous kind of a woman." There was a pause which the girl in buttercup yellow did not attempt to fill. Then Jim went on. "Patty wanted me to dance with her and I suppose I ought to look her up. But it's a funny thing—a man can hear a lot about what a fine character a woman has and how brave and faithful she is, and though he admires her he doesn't specially want to dance with her."

"I suppose so," said the girl, and Jim went on.

"I wish I didn't have to dance with anyone but you. But I've got to look up that head nurse. I promised Patty. And I suppose you've got your dances promised. Maybe you could give me just one more?"

"Supposing I take your dance order," suggested the girl, "and look up the head nurse. I'll get her to give you a dance or two. I'm afraid I won't have any left."

Jim looked appealingly at her—a little bit frightened. "Do you mean you don't want to dance with me again?"

She did not answer him directly. "I must go and look up that head nurse—Jane Bradstreet is her name"—and then she hurried away and Jim watched her as she stood and talked to the chaperons and then went on and talked to the leader of the orchestra. Jim still sat there, not troubling to find a partner for the next dance, until a dumpy little girl in spectacles and a blue satin dance frock came up to him.

"She told me to say that the head nurse would give you the tenth and the last dance," she recited, "and she said she would be glad if you danced every dance."

Jim stood up awkwardly. He was over a foot taller than the dumpy little girl in blue and she looked clumsy. "I'd be very happy if you'd give me this next dance," he said to the girl who beamed with joy at having found such a good-looking partner. "Our head nurse is perfectly wonderful," the girl told him as he led her out to the floor. "That time when there was a fire in Ward C—you should have seen her—a regular Florence Nightingale."

"She must be remarkable," said Jim without enthusiasm. Then came the tenth dance and he asked the girl with whom he had danced the ninth to point out the head nurse—Miss Bradstreet—and the girl pointed out the lovely nurse in buttercup yellow.

"But you can't be that head nurse they have been talking about," he told her. "It is enough to be so beautiful—and really you will let me have the last dance with you?"

"Of course I'd rather dance it with you," said the girl, "than with anyone else. Patty has told me how clever you are and how brave, but I never imagined that you were so good looking and entertaining besides."

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

SANITARY DIST. PRIMARY IS IMPORTANT

The importance of the coming Sanitary District primary to the tax payers of Chicago was emphasized last night by Col. Noble Brandon Judah. The primary will be April 8.

"The Sanitary District has for its object the health of the city and county through the proper handling of the sewage disposal problem of this district", noted Col. Judah.

It has been estimated that in the next six years the Sanitary District trustees will spend approximately $384,000,000; this figure includes a large expenditure for sewage treatment plants.

Prominent leaders of civic and business life, having in mind the reputation of the city and the necessity for efficient administration of public affairs drafted five candidates, who are now entering the primaries under the colors of the Civic Ticket for Sanitary District Trustees. These five candidates are: Ayres Boal, prominent real estate man and pioneer Chicagoan; Joshua D'Esposito, builder of Chicago Union Station and widely known engineer; Fletcher M. Durbin, manufacturer; George B. McKibbin, attorney; and Charles M. Moderswell, coal operator and former president Chicago School Board.

"Support of the Civic Ticket for Sanitary District Trustees is deserved", Col. Judah stated in an interview when the announcement was made concerning the opening of the campaign for the Sanitary District Trustees.

"Men ably qualified have been independently selected to serve this municipality, which is larger than the city of Chicago itself."

"These men, all leaders in their respective activities, consented to serve on the condition that they would have the support of the Republican party at the April primaries. The Deneen group of the Republican Party at once agreed to give the Civic ticket its unqualified support."

"The Sanitary election this year is particularly important because of the recent decision of the Secretary of War that the Sanitary District may continue to divert water from Lake Michigan only on condition that in the next 8 years the District plan, build and place in operation sewage treatment plants large enough to protect the good health of the entire district."

"The Civic ticket is made up of men of recognized ability, men who have had the extensive business experience to qualify them to administer the affairs of such an institution as the Sanitary District, which in the next eight years has construction work to do that will cost approximately $200,000,000."

"The candidates on the Civic Ticket, when elected to office, would make a Sanitary District board really representative of all sides of the city, with four members from the North side. The Civic Ticket candidates are men of broad training, including an engineer, a mine owner, a manufacturer, a real estate man and attorney."

"In the litigation on the water diversion problem, it is imperative to have men of such caliber that in standing and experience they will demand respect in Washington, both from the Supreme Court and from members of Congress of the other Great Lake states which have joined in the suit against the Sanitary District and the State of Illinois."

"The Civic Ticket for Sanitary District is made up of the type of men who will work unreservedly for the interest of the sanitary and health problems of the district and moreover for the good name of the City of Chicago."

Thornton taxpayers To Tell Tax Com.

About Tax Relief

Thornton township tax payers will be the first in the outlying districts of Cook county to have an opportunity to tell the Illinois Revenue Investigation commission what they think should be done to revise the state tax laws and give permanent tax relief.

The commission, created by the last legislature and appointed by Gov. L. L. Emmerson to investigate the tax situation and report back to the governor or the legislature on a tax relief legislative program, held a meeting Thursday night (March 20) at Plaza hall, Harvey, under the auspices of the Thornton Township Tax Payers Relief association.

The following Tuesday, March 25, the commission will hold a hearing at Elks hall, Chicago Heights, and on Friday, March 28, at Calumet City. Subsequent meetings are planned for Maywood or Forest Park, for the western towns; at Argo for the Argo-Summit section, and later for the northwest and northern parts of the county.

Meanwhile Senator Huebsch, who is a candidate for re-election from the Seventh Senatorial District, comprising the country districts of Cook county, is dividing his time between his duties as chairman of the revenue commission and his campaign. He speaks next Monday night at Wilmette; next Wednesday before the Proviso Township Real Estate board.

Senator Huebsch was appointed to the Revenue Investigation Commission by Gov. Emmerson because of his keen knowledge of the tax situation and his study of revenue legislation. He was named chairman of the commission by his fellow members—former Sen. Herbert Hicks; Sen. R. J. Barr; Rep. Leroy Green; Rep. Alexander Wilson and Harrison B. Riley.

The 41st District
Needs Senator Barr

Senator Barr is a candidate for re-election to the State Senate. He is running on his record of service in the past and his ability to serve in the future. That is always a good platform for a candidate of great ability like Senator Barr, who has to his credit years of distinguished public service.

The 41st Senatorial District consists of DuPage and Will Counties, which are within the so-called metropolitan area. They are both developing rapidly. It is believed that the population of DuPage County has doubled since the 1920 census was taken. Good roads give communities a chance to grow. They not only increase the sum total of human happiness, but also add uncounted millions to property values.

From the first, Senator Barr has successfully contended that each county in this district is justly entitled to more miles of state road than other counties of similar size farther from Chicago. Our proximity to Chicago and heavy auto traffic from that great city justify the Senator's claim, which was recognized in both road bond issue acts. As a result, DuPage and Will Counties have a lot of wonderful roads. These roads have been a great factor in the development of these communities. Other roads are provided but not yet built. They are needed; and other and better and wider roads will be needed as long as these communities continue to grow.

In addition to all this, the state has an unfinished waterway which runs thru the 41st Senatorial District. It is our hope that it will be completed without delay. But ways and means to complete this important improvement must be worked out, because available state funds are insufficient for the job. But public improvements, whether roads or a waterway, do not just happen. First of all they are planned; then the plans must be worked into legislation; and after that the work of construction remains to be done. Senator Barr has been doing this work for the people of this Senatorial District with great success ever since he entered the Senate. It has always been important work, but it is even more important now because of the growth and rapid development of many communities in the district. Great developments have been carried forward during the last few years, and it is probable that greater development will come within the next few years.

With all the public work at hand and that just ahead, it is clearly to the interest of the people of this district to select for their Senator the ablest and best qualified person for the position in their district. The experience Senator Barr has gained from long service in the senate, and his position of leadership in that body give him greater influence and power than any new member could have or acquire in many years. Selecting a senator should not be a sentimental or even a political matter. What the people of this district want is effective service. They want results, not excuses.

Senator Barr wants to continue this work. It will be generally admitted that he has been successful, which has naturally afforded him great pleasure. We think that the people of this district are in need of the help that Senator Barr is so well able to give in completing the improvements planned, but yet to be built.

Keep Barr on the Job at Springfield

Chairman Eugene D. Funk of the Buy-Illinois-Products commission has sent letters to 1,500 public officials in the state, including mayors, presidents of village boards, presidents and clerks of district school boards, county superintendents of highways, sheriffs, county commissioners, presidents of park boards and others, urging them to favor all classes of Illinois products in the purchase of material and supplies.

"The Buy-Illinois-Products commission was created by the general assembly to stimulate business by promoting the sale of all classes of home products," says Chairman Funk.

"Governor Emmerson in a recent public statement, said: 'As long as I am governor, favorable consideration will be given all Illinois products in the purchase of material and supplies for the state. I believe that all public officials in the counties, cities, towns, villages and school districts of the state might follow this policy with benefit.'"

Approximately 1,000 delegates will be brought to Springfield for the 1931 state convention of the John Ericsson Republican league of Illinois. Concluding this year's convention at Moline March 10, the league selected Springfield as the next convention city and elected Harry W. Hanson of Princeton, assistant director of the state department of trade and commerce, as state president. Other officers are: Hjalmar Rehn of Joliet, vice president; J. Arthur Friedlund of Chicago, secretary; Herbert N. Bloomquist of Galesburg, treasurer; A. J. Lindgren of Joliet, Charles Thoren of Chicago, directors, and A. G. Erickson of Bloomington, sergeant-at-arms.

Fees collected by the Illinois miners' examining board must be turned over by the state department of mines and minerals to the state treasurer, accompanied by a report showing where and from which each fee was collected. This must be done before the tenth day of the month following. This is the substance of an opinion given by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom to John G. Milhouse, director of the department of mines and minerals.

Assurance of the whole-hearted cooperation of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and the Illinois department of public works and buildings in seeking federal aid for assistance in constructing the Lincoln Memorial highway was given by Director H. H. Cleveland of the department of public works and buildings at the meeting of proponents of the proposed highway from Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois, who met at Vincennes, Ind., on March 6, to form a tri-state organization. Mr. Cleveland was Governor Emmerson's personal representative at the meeting.

In accordance with Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's proclamation designating the week of April 27 to May 3, as Health week, Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, has announced plans for sending speakers throughout the state to talk on health. In addition he plans seven or more all-day regional health meets to take place at various points easily accessible to outlying territory in all parts of the state. Intensive study courses in preventive medicine will be given during the day at each meet while the evening will be devoted to a public popular program featured by speakers eminent in the public health and medical world.

Dr. Thomas G. Hull, chief of the state diagnostic laboratory in the department of public health for the last ten years, has handed his resignation to Dr. Andy Hall in order to accept a position with the American Medical association in Chicago. Doctor Hull's resignation becomes effective March 31 and he will take up his new duties on April 1. The work to which Doctor Hull will go is a new venture of the American Medical association in the development of scientific exhibits in the field of medicine and public health. In this project Doctor Hull, as an associate member of the faculty of that institution, will have the co-operation of the medical college of the University of Illinois. Doctor Hull will draw upon the facilities of both organizations to build up what is anticipated to become an outstanding medical museum.

Discussing the latest developments of the state campaign for early diagnosis of tuberculosis, Wellington P. Shahan, secretary of the Illinois Tuberculosis and Public Health association, said, "Fifteen bill posting companies have come forward with offers to donate space and to post 125 of the 234 sheet posters allotted Illinois by the National Tuberculosis association."

In connection with the celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary on April 30 and May 1, the state geological survey will hold two symposia, one for the purpose of discussing the formation of the coal measure strata of Illinois and adjoining states, and the other to decide on the research needs of the Illinois coal industry. State officials, distinguished scientists, and leaders in the state's mineral industries will be present. The Illinois Academy of Science will co-operate by holding its 1930 meeting in Urbana on May 2 and 3.

The Museum of Science and Industry, just being constructed in Chicago, is searching for all manner of farm tools used by the early pioneers in Illinois, and invites contributions to the proposed collection of instructive specimens. "Specifically," said the museum's appeal for farm relics, "we need such things as very early plows, particularly a Jethro wood plow; hand tools and harrows for preparation of a seed bed; early drills and seeders; harvesting machinery, particularly sickles, scythes and cradles, twine and wire knotter; a Hussey reaper or a picture of it." The object of the display is to preserve material that will trace the growth and the advancement of agriculture from the pioneer days to the present.

It is the duty of the warden of an Illinois penitentiary to keep a person condemned to die after being sentenced for murder from the time he is received by the warden from a sheriff of a county until the case is disposed of by the state Supreme court, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has ruled. The case in question was that of John Preston, sentenced to death in DuPage county and delivered to Henry C. Hill, warden of the Joliet penitentiary, for execution. The Supreme court granted a superseas and execution was stayed pending the high court's action. Hill asked if Preston should remain in the warden's custody or be returned to the sheriff of DuPage county pending the court's decision.

The division of apianian work of the department of agriculture is urging beekeepers in the south portion of the state to take advantage of the warm March days to take an inventory of their apiaries to find out how the bees wintered and if any disease exists. The inspectors will soon begin their work in the central part of the state.

"Along with the men who have this work in charge, I hope to help make this the greatest exposition, along the lines of agricultural and industrial education and advancement, that Illinois has ever held."

Lesson for March 23

JESUS TEACHING AND HEALING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:53-16:12.
(Print Matthew 15:21-31.)

GOLDEN TEXT—Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Kindness to a Stranger.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Kindness to a Stranger.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Faith that Wins.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Faith Tested and Triumphant.

The material embraced in this section of Scripture is too abundant to attempt to cover in one lesson, therefore selection should be made in keeping with the lesson topic.

I. Without Honor in One's Own Country (13:54-58).

Jesus shared the common fate of men—unacknowledged in His own country. Even His own brothers did not believe on Him till after His resurrection (John 7:3-8; cf. Acts 1:14). Familiarity has a paralyzing effect, and at times breeds contempt. Because of unbelief only a limited work could be done there.

II. Jesus Healing the Multitude (14:13, 14).

1. He retired to the desert (v. 13).

The news of the cruel death of John the Baptist brought grief to the Master's heart, and He withdrew to a place of quietness to commune with His Father. The best thing to do in time of sorrow is to flee into the presence of God. Jesus accepted John's death as typical of His own.

2. Followed by the people (v. 13).

He could not be concealed. The peoples' interest was such that they followed Him on foot. Where Jesus is, the multitude gathers.

3. Jesus healing the sick (v. 14).

Although the rulers had broken with Him, He did not abandon His work. He continued to preach and work for the good of those who would hear. Though desperate and hopeless cases were brought to Him, nothing was found too hard for Him. The peoples' great need excited His sympathy. He is just the same today.

III. Jesus Healing the Daughter of the Woman at Canaan (Matt. 15:21-31).

The first twenty-one verses of this chapter should be considered in connection with this topic. The force of the lesson can only be seen in contrast with the failure of the people. Verses 1-20 represent the apostasy of Israel and her rejection of the Savior. In sharp contrast, we see in the healing of this woman, salvation typically going forth to the Gentiles.

1. The mother's awful distress (vv. 21, 22).

Her daughter was grievously vexed with a devil. The sufferings of the mother were perhaps as intense as those of the child. This Gentile woman had doubtless heard of the fame of Jesus. His power to heal had come to her notice and many times she longed for Him to come her way that her daughter might be healed. Now that He was in her neighborhood she came straightway to Him. Let parents be encouraged to bring their children to Jesus, even though they be demon-possessed.

2. The woman's fervent appeal for help (vv. 22-25).

She fell at His feet and pled for mercy. She besought Him to cast the devil out. Her appeal may be considered as a model prayer.

(1) She was sincere and earnest.
(2) The prayer was brief and definite.
(3) It was personal and humble.
(4) It was believing and persistent.

3. The woman's faith rewarded (vv. 26-28).

(1) The Lord's apparent refusal (v. 23). He answered her not a word. The reason for His silence was that He was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. This woman was a stranger to the Covenant people. Her appeal was on the wrong basis. She addressed Him as the Son of David, which only a child of the kingdom had a right to do. She must come in the right way. (2) The woman's quick response (vv. 25-27). As soon as she perceived the difficulty, she worshipped Him as Lord and cried for help. While only the Israelite could approach Him as the Son of David, all could come to Him and own Him as Lord. She willingly took her place as a Gentile "dog," recognizing that salvation is of the Jews. (3) The glorious issue of her faith (v. 28). She received more than she asked. Her daughter was healed at once and the instruction she received was worth much to her. She goes down in history with the Savior's commendation of her faith.

Life Needs a Good Pattern

Remember how swiftly the shuttle flies and how a broken thread may mar the fabric. Remember that without a good pattern, all weaving is to no purpose; take much thought, therefore, as to the pattern of a good life and be greatly instructed by that life which is the exemplar for us all.—Gauguin Atkins.

Love, Faith, Obedience

Love, faith, and obedience are sides of the same prism.—McDonald.

Finds Youth's Fountain!

"JUST one thing has contributed more than anything else in my life toward making me the radiantly happy woman I am today," writes Mrs. Walter Ruhl, of Glenbrook, Conn. "If this was selling at ten dollars a bottle instead of the few cents it costs, I would scrape the money together, and I don't mean maybe!"

"I guess a good many others feel the same way, judging by the number of people I know who swear by this 'Fountain of Youth.'"

Millions of people all over the world have discovered this simple secret, which is nothing but giving our bodies the internal lubrication that they need, as much as any machine. After you have taken Nujol for a few days, and have proved to yourself how it brightens your whole life, you will wonder how so simple a treatment can make such a great change in your health and your happiness. The reason is this:

Regularly as clock work, Nujol clears out of our bodies those poisons (we all have them) which slow us up, make us headachy, low in our minds.

Colorless and tasteless as pure water, Nujol cannot hurt you, no matter how long you take it. It is not a medicine. It contains no drugs. It forms no habit. It is non-fattening.

Try Nujol yourself and see how much better you feel. Get a bottle in its sealed package at any drug store and be sure it's trademarked "Nujol." It costs but a few cents—and it makes you feel like a million dollars! Start taking Nujol this very night!

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

CHAPTER I

Wreck of the Sachem

There were black looks from the men as they cut away the wreckage of the main-topmast and curses on their lips lost nothing in vehemence for being muted by the gale. Fellowes, remote on the poop, missed none of the discontent, although he seemed to have eyes only for the huntress astern, and the rocky coast that filled the horizon to starboard. He held himself very erect, his slight, wiry frame tensed with energy, his hard-choseled, young face frowning bleakly. Old Henderson, his first mate, standing beside him, nodded toward the frigate's close-reefed tops' lifting nearer about the combers.

"Tis bad luck, sir. We'll go ashore if they hit the other stick."

"They won't follow us in much closer," Fellowes answered shortly. "There's a port called Faro we ought to open any moment. I know where we are. That's Algarve, in southern Portugal."

He scanned the viscous pall that draped the sky behind the frigate. An onshore gale, that was the crowning affliction! Everything had gone wrong since they spoke the Salem letter-of-marque off the Cape Verdes, and heard Madison had declared war—baffling winds, suspicious cruisers, the storm that had driven them east into the Gulf of Cadiz. And now, this tall-spurred, yellow frigate!

A cold rage possessed Fellowes; his blue eyes, bluer for the tan of cheek bones and brow, sparkled icily. He reviewed the long voyage to Canton, the patience with which he had assembled a choice cargo, certain to pay big profits.

Was he to see that cargo put up at auction by a British prize court? See the Sachem that he had groomed and cherished lovingly sold off at Portsmouth for British registry? He'd die first, he told himself. And his jaw set squarely as a tongue of flame and a roundshot whined overhead in the rigging.

"Gettin' closer," croaked the first mate. "And we're purty nigh them rocks."

"I see it, Mr. Henderson," Fellowes assented crisply. "And once for all, I'll not strike. The frigate daren't follow us much farther—she draws twice what we do."

"Aye, aye, sir," muttered the first mate, but his tone was one of dissent.

Fellowes' fists clinched tight under the skirts of his watch-coat. Give him a few hours of darkness, and he'd contrive to slip free of his trap, beat past the blinded frigate, perhaps turn and steer east again for Cadiz—he could, at a pinch, find a market for his cargo with the Spanish merchants. But profit, trade was a secondary consideration. The main thing was to outface the arrogance of British power, show that America could keep the seas.

The frigate, undeterred by the imminence of a dangerous coast, continued on her course a point or two nearer the wind than the Sachem's. Suddenly, in her bows, glowed two little jets of flame for eyes. The whippy boom of Long Toms rumbled down the wind. And the deck of the Sachem trembled under Fellowes. There was a cracking and rending of timbers, but he looked in vain for signs of damage, until he saw the helmsman clutching at the madly spinning wheel.

"She don't answer, Cap'n! She don't answer," babbled the man.

Overhead spars banged and canvas slatted as the brig broached to; the foretopmast went by the board with a crash in a welter of tangled rigging. And in the midst of the confusion, Fellowes heard himself saying calmly: "The rudder's shot away. You'd best get for'ard, my man."

"I knowed 't would happen," cried the first mate. "She'll be on them rocks in a jiffy. The sooner we lower the boats, the surer we'll be o' savin' the crew."

"There'll be time," snapped Fellowes. "Her head's swinging into the wind. The foretopmast will serve as a sea-anchor while it holds."

"Mr. Henderson, we'll lower the quarterboats." And he called down to the crew: "Smartly, men! I'm sorry you're going into captivity. Any who prefer to stay with me I'll do what I can for."

"Ain't you comin' sir?" exclaimed Henderson.

"I was brought up in England," Fellowes answered dryly. "I don't hanker for their prisons."

"But them rocks—"

"I'll risk it. My luck is due for a turn. Now, then, look alive, all of you! No small gear, men. Just as you are."

They obeyed him mechanically, officers and men alike demoralized by the rapidity with which disaster had overtaken them.

Presently old Henderson rolled aft, and hailed him respectfully:

"Better come along of us, Cap'n; she's a goner."

"I'd rather chance the rocks than Dartmoor," Fellowes rejoined, with a smile. "Make no mistake. You'd be wiser to stay with me—go for a privateersman after we reach home."

"You'll never reach home through them rocks," Henderson answered stubbornly. "I'm sorry, sir. Ye've been a good skipper. I'd stay—I see any chance of gettin' ashore."

"Thank you, Mr. Henderson. Don't worry—you're right to go."

The mate's face was suddenly set he saluted clumsily, and clambered over the bulwarks. A moment later, the small boats cast off, and pulled away. Fellowes was relieved when the frigate held on her course to pick them up. At least he had the satisfaction of knowing he wasn't responsible for any deaths. And he told himself, surveying the battered hulk of brig, that he'd done all that was possible to save her.

But she was a goner, as old Henderson had said. Drifting steadily on shore. He dropped off the poop into the green pool of the waist, and sloshed through the companionway of his cabin, where he discarded watch-coat and sea-boots, and buckled on a belt containing his scanty funds. He had barely regained the deck when a wave demolished the clutter of wreckage that moored the brig's bow.

Fellowes was half-suffocated by the cascades of emerald water that breached the bulwarks, but he fought his way for'ard, and succeeded in lashing himself to the windlass. He had his parting view of the frigate, lying to, the Sachem's boats under her counter. Ahead, a saw-toothed ledge of rocks dripped blackly in a hollow between two waves, and he pulled the slip-knot of his lashings, bracing himself for the shock. It came with a jarring and rending of timbers, a mighty din of waters. Then he was snatched off the deck, hurled up—and up—and up. He must swim, he realized, but at once he began to sink. Down—down—down! A drumming in his ears, eyes smarting, lungs oppressed. But he must fight on. He must! Show these Englishmen—

Fellowes was aroused by fingers prodding at his garments. A hairy face glared greedily into his; a curved knife flashed in the gusty light of torches, playing hazily about a ring of other hairy faces, bestial and cruel.

The man holding the knife wrenched at his soaking neckcloth. Easy to imagine what would happen next. He braced himself for the nick of the steel—and a woman's voice belled in the shadows, high and clear. The hairy faces recoiled; the knife was hidden. The woman spoke briefly again.

The torches blazed nearer, straw torches, tightly braided and dipped in resin. Across the area of pebbly beach, he saw distinctly the three people who approached him: two women, one slim and willowy, despite the cloak that enveloped her, the other enormous in girth, panting and wheezing as she waddled along, and with them a caskedoff priest.

The slim woman stooped over Fellowes, and he looked up into a pair of velvet brown eyes, dewy and compassionate, set in a lovely, oval face.

"Poor soul," she exclaimed in English, innocent of accent. "We saw your misfortune from the castle. But why did you remain on your ship?"

"I don't strike," he whispered.

A shadow mantled her olive features. "All the world at war, and America must thrust her infant into the melee! But we'll not talk politics, sir. I'll have you carried to Padre Antonio's."

Clever Hiding Places for Family Treasures

In this day of checking accounts, safe-deposit vaults, wall safes, burglary insurance, of pursers on steamships and clerks in hotels who safeguard our valuables for us, it is difficult even to imagine what must have been the anxiety in the days when every woman had to look after her treasures for herself.

And yet even our grandmothers can sometimes tell us of the way they hid their jewelry deep within the feathers of the bed, of hiding their money in chinks of the wall or sewing it in the wide hems of their skirts. And the secret drawers and slides and cubby holes that we find in interesting old pieces of furniture bear witness to the fact that women of former generations have had a far less easy time of it to hide their treasures than we.

In the bureaus, desks and other pieces of furniture made by the master cabinetmakers of the Eighteenth century in France and England much time and skill were used in making these secret hide-away places—the location of which and method of opening was often kept a deep secret between the maker of the piece and the owner.

Friction in Criticism

If you would be loved as a companion, avoid unnecessary criticism upon those with whom you live—Helps.

TAKE IT FROM DAD

By Frank H. Cheley

Fathers and Sons as Pals

"Dad, what's the matter—are we so different from other people in the way we live and do things?"

Every now and then I hit a snag that sets me just wondering. Last week at school I was made chairman of the committee to arrange for the annual father and son get-together. I got the gang together and told them I was counting on them to a man to be present and they just laughed at me and razzed me terribly and told me I might become cheer leader but that if I thought that I could drag them out to a dad's party I was plumb goofie. Why more than half of that bunch don't want a father and son banquet. They talk about the 'Old Gent,' the 'Governor,' and the 'Boss'—why I never think of you that way at all. We had an awfully good time last year and the year before and last Saturday the guys made all sorts of fun of me because I said I'd rather go to the football game with you than with the gang. Jimmy Craig said, 'Why do you want to always be dragging him around for, aren't you ever going to grow up?' Now why is it, Dad, that some fathers and sons pal together and others do not?"

"I've thought of that very thing myself, Bob, a very great deal, long before you did, kid. Did it ever occur to you that the fine understanding, congenial friendship which we enjoy and have these many years didn't just happen?"

"Why no, Dad, what do you mean?"

"Why, I mean, my boy, that sympathy and understanding between folks, that mutual regard of one person for another, even of father for son or son for father never just happens. It has to grow and develop and be carefully cultivated. Fine fellowship between folks is the result of constantly doing things together. Why do you especially like Henry and Chub? Why because you are constantly doing interesting things together. If Henry and Chub just came here week in and week out and sat around you'd soon get tired of one another or even irritable with one another."

"It is a strange and pathetic thing, Bob, that so few fathers, wise and capable in their business and professions, have never discovered that simple fact. There are thousands of dads who while they provide food and clothes and home and school and cash for growing boys, never know them as we know each other because they never do anything together except criticize each other."

"All these years that you have been growing along I've planned things for us to do together Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. We've grown up together in a natural way, I have come to understand and appreciate you and have great dreams for you. You have never been afraid of me; have had confidence in my judgment and have played ball with me in our plans for home and Mother in a way which brings me very great personal satisfaction and, Son, it is because there is no false modesty between us that we have always been able to talk things over freely and frankly."

"I hope with all my heart that nothing will ever happen to destroy that fine fellowship. In no way at all have I sought to dominate you or make your decisions for you. Always have I given you all the liberty you could stand, and sometimes more, in my efforts to have you become a self-propelled individual. It tickles me to death to see you step into responsibility and know that you are ambitious to do something and be something beyond the ordinary, and beyond what your Dad has been able to accomplish."

"Bob, every real dad who is working at the dad business is eager and anxious to be a pal to his boy. Many times he does not know how and many times the son makes it doubly difficult. The dad of one of your pals told me only the other day that he constantly had to deal with his son 'with gloves on,' he was so touchy. Thank goodness we get on as man to man. I'm sure you need my older judgment and encouragement and expectancy and I know I need your pep and enthusiasm and boundless energy."

"It's mighty difficult in the modern mad race for money and things to take time to live a bit with our children. We haven't got as much worldly goods as some of our neighbors; our car is of a more modest make and we don't 'belong' as much as some of us know, but, boy, we have each other in mutual regard and all the money in the city couldn't buy that from either of us. Let's keep on doing things together."

"Boy, I want to make that Canadian canoe trip with you. I want to hunt a little big game in Alaska with you. I want to take some extension courses while you are in college. I want to help you build that first home of yours. Yes, Bob, I want to help you raise a son that will bring you as much joy as you have brought me. So, let's shake again. That's it! What do we care what the gang says. When is this Father and Son banquet to be? I believe I could almost make a speech?"

Reno's Odd Income

Matrimonial entanglements enriched Reno by more than $1,500,000 in 1922, according to an estimate by the county clerk, E. H. Beemer. He said the figure was conservative. Fifty dollars each was paid by 2,106 applicants for divorce as court fees and their attorneys charged $250 as a minimum retainer, while several paid between $10,000 and $25,000 for their decrees. The county clerk estimates living costs at $25 a week and each person had to reside within the county at least 90 days. With the 3,210 permits to wed issued during the same period, Beemer said newlyweds spent about $30,000 for the permits and fees to the ministers of the city.

Lester Kinney, runner up in the spelling contest was also introduced and applauded for the honor he had brought to the district.

Miss Ruth Kay daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kay, pleased and delighted the audience with several well played piano numbers.

The posters designed and made by the pupils of the Orland Park School as part of the County Health Campaign were on display and showed excellent understanding of the subject and excellent execution in a large majority of the exhibits.

The actual election of officers passed off so quietly and smoothly as to almost merit no comment except the announcement of the names of those selected to govern the destinies of the organization during the coming year.

Mrs. George Cox (Hilda) was unanimously elected to the office of President upon the withdrawal of Mrs. Tom Davidson, who declined to have her name kept in nomination because of home and business cares. Mrs. H. Adele Cooper was selected as Vice-President to act as a stay and support to the new administration because of her experience and prestige as First Vice-President of the Association. Mrs. Fred Uthe was unanimously elected treasurer, succeeding Mrs. Sherman Knox and Mrs. Earl Reisch who functioned so efficiently as chairman of the Membership Committee during the past two years, was the choice for secretary.

The new lineup of officers shows a corps of ladies all enthused with the ideals of the association and fortified by ability and experience and should give an excellent account of themselves. They will not be inducted into office until later in the year, notice of which will appear in these columns.

Mrs. Harriet Gee, chairman of the Child Welfare Bureau announces that the clinic will be resumed in April, notice of which will also be given in this paper.

The usual excellent refreshments were served after the close of the meeting.

Orland Park P. T. A. thus closes its first administration with a record of accomplishment and with an outlook for even greater progress and success in the coming year.

Tinley Park Garden Club Notes

—By—

TRUDIE NOHRING SWISHER

IN MARCH

By Wendell Tynes, Jr.

The wind and rain come on together

To make our windy, rainy weather;

The wind goes whirling round and round;

The rain comes dashing to the ground,

In March.

Everywhere the birds are seen;

The trees begin to turn to green.

A billion seeds begin to sprout;

They'll soon be up to look about,

In March.

The Tinley Park Garden Club is taking an active part in the Garden and Flower Show to be held at the Chicago Stadium starting April 5, and will be represented by some beautiful exhibits which are expected to win ribbons in the competitions open to the ninety clubs composing the Garden Club of Illinois.

Among the Tinley Park Club's enterprises is a living room flower arrangement, of which Mrs. Florence

Anderson is in charge; an occasional table set for six, which will be taken care of by the group headed by Mrs. J. C. Funk; a shadow box flower study to be arranged by

Mrs. Selma Duff and her committee; and a gate arrangement by Mrs. W.

Funk committee.

Rose Chapter entries in charge of Mrs. W. Combs will be as follows:

Japanese shadow box; garden table;

and a minnute "Table Garden."

After months of hard work the Garden Club of Illinois, with its member clubs in more than 90 communities of the state, has completed preparations for the Central States

Garden and Flower Show to be held under its auspices at the Chicago Stadium for nine days starting

April 5th and Mrs. Frederick Fisher

president of the state organization states that it will be a magnificent spectacle with a wealth of bloom and greenery that will amaze visitors.

The north woods of Michigan and the forests of Kentucky and Misssouri were invaded this week by tree experts who are selecting more than 1200 trees up to 25 feet high

Balsam, Cedars, Spruce and other northern evergreens and southern cedars, which will be shipped to Chicago Stadium where they will form the backgrounds for the full sized gardens which will occupy the 40,

000 feet of main floor space in the huge exhibition hall. At the same time reports from greenhouses near Chicago, where thousands of flowering plants are being grown for the show, indicate that the recent sunshine has brought the plants along in good shape and that a wealth of gorgeous bloom now is assured.

Space forbids further comment on the show, but more particulars will be given next week.

Farm Census Schedules Out

This week farm census schedules have been mailed by Judge Henry

Waje to every farmer in Orland Township. The judge asks every farmer to fill out these schedules and have them ready when the census taker calls for them the forepart of April.

Baptism by Sprinkling

The rite of baptism by sprinkling or pouring is supposed to have originated either in the Second or Third century and is alluded to in the writings of Cyprian, who gave his opinion that in the case of those who were sick or unable to endure the rite of immersion it was a lawful baptism.

Mokena Scout Committee Named

The Boy Scout movement at Mokena is getting well under way. A Scout committee consisting of Elmer Cooper, Ona E. McGovney and John Balaz has been chosen and the committee is now awaiting the necessary papers from the Will County Scout headquarters to begin operations.

New Subdivision For Tinley Park

Tinley Park is on the verge of the greatest real estate boom in its history. Grover Elmore who has been booming Tinley Park with his subdivisions to the north and south of Tinley Park and who recently acquired 40 acres of what was at one time known as the Wm. Andres farm and who also acquired the former Reuter subdivision, has also purchased the 120 acre farm of Mrs. Elizabeth Maihoff adjoining these subdivisions and expects to subdivide it and make another subdivision out of it. When all these subdivisions are built up Tinley Park will be a young city. A lot of building activity is in view for this summer.

$400,000 Will Be Spent On Highway Work

Contracts for 14 miles of paving to cost $400,000 can be awarded as soon as rights of way are obtained according to an announcement made by Fred Francis, Chairman of the Will County bond issue committee of the county board.

In his report to the county board, Mr. Francis says that plans have been approved for the Maple road, 143rd street east from Lockport to connect with Orland township.

The Maple road paving of 8.2 miles will link up Will County with a new route into Chicago. Bids for two bridges on the road will be received March 29.

Most of the right of way in New Lenox township have been obtained but there is a large number of dedications for road purposes required in Joliet township. As soon as the property owners co-operate with the right of way committee a date to receive bids on this highway will be fixed.

Most of the right of way on 143 street have been obtained so that a contract for this work can also be awarded. This road, thru Homer and Lockport townships, provides for concrete paving for a distance of 5.2 miles.

Frankfort village will have their mile of concrete road thru the village soon. The contract for the paving of this road under the Will County bond issue, will be let on March 25th.

All the right of way has been secured for route 53 on 59th street in Will county. Only a few pieces have to be procured in Cook county and these may be acquired at an early date it is said.

Green Garden township is to get a new bridge between sections 11 and 14 at an estimated cost of $1800.
